Call for Exhibition Entries: Tiny Spokes: The Oak Cliff Bike Experience

The Oak Cliff Cultural Center seeks participants for its annual neighborhood exhibition.

Deadline for submissions: November 15, 2011

Dallas, TX – The Oak Cliff Cultural Center is seeking Oak Cliff based participants for its annual neighborhood exhibition. The exhibition will run from December 9, 2011 through February 3, 2012 and the artist reception will take place on Friday, December 9, 2011 from 6 to 8 p.m.

About Tiny Spokes: The Oak Cliff Bike Experience

This year the focus of the show is on small works of art that use bicycles as the inspiration, subject matter and/or medium with the goal of creating playful, amusing, nostalgic, or poignant commentaries on the roles of bikes in the Oak Cliff Community. The two wheel revolution of this alternate mode of transportation in Oak Cliff has yielded a myriad of events and positive change. Bikes can be a powerful art medium, conjuring up memories of childhood, past friendships, and other recollections. For this reason we have decided to celebrate the bike in an engaging, fun, and above all, playful exhibit! All entries must be original works of art and must not have been presented at the Oak Cliff Cultural Center in previous exhibitions.

Artists interested in participating in the exhibition should visit <http://dallasculture.org/OakCliffCulturalCenter/pressRelease.asp> to download an entry form and a prospectus on the exhibition. The deadline for submissions is 5pm November 15, 2011 at the Oak Cliff Cultural Center. This is not a postmark deadline.
