Selective Service: What You Need To Know

Getting the facts may help young men understand why it is so important that they register with Selective Service System.

Who Needs To Register?

All male U.S. citizens must register when they turn 18, as do male noncitizens who take up residency in the U.S. before their 26th birthday. That includes illegal aliens, legal permanent residents and refugees.

Why Register?

The penalties for not registering can be very serious. A man who fails to register may, if prosecuted and convicted, face a fine of up to $250,000 and/or a prison term of up to five years.

Not registering can also affect your ability to go to school, become a citizen and get a job.

Failing to register can mean:

- You will not qualify for federal student loans or grant programs, including Pell Grants, College Work-Study, Guaranteed Student/Plus Loans and National Direct Student Loans.
- You cannot apply for citizenship if you arrived in the U.S. before your 26th birthday.
- You cannot participate in the federal job-training act called the Workforce Investment Act.
- You are not eligible for jobs in the executive branch of the federal government and the U.S. Postal Service.
- You may not be able to get a driver's license, as some states require proof of registration.

Free Tax Options Save Time And Money

It's that time of year again—time to file your taxes. And this year, millions of Americans can file their taxes for free online or at a low cost using their iPhone or Android smartphones.

Today, there are more free and low-cost tax preparation options available than ever before. Low-income taxpayers, filers with simple returns, even active-duty military personnel are among those who can benefit from free online tax preparation and filing options.

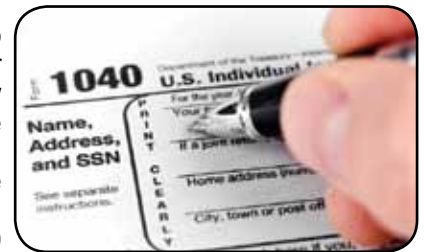

File for Free

The IRS Free File program provides free tax preparation for middle- and low-income taxpayers. Taxpayers with an adjusted gross income (AGI) of $58,000 or less, about 70 percent of all taxpayers, can get free online tax preparation and e-filing through the Free File Alliance at www.irs.gov.

Many tax preparation software companies offer a free version of their products available to consumers, regardless of income. TurboTax has one—designed for taxpayers with relatively straightforward tax returns—that guides you step by step through your tax return and searches for all the tax credits you're eligible for to get you the biggest refund possible, guaranteed.

File on Your Smartphone

Rather file your taxes on your smartphone? If you have a 1040EZ, you can file your taxes on your iPhone or Android phone with SnapTax. All you do is snap a photo of your W-2 on your phone and answer a few simple questions. The app is free to download in the Apple App Store and Android Market. You only pay the low $14.99 introductory price when you're ready to file your return.

Understanding Your Oil Filter

What's in an Oil Filter? There are several main components in an oil filter. The shell is the solid material that surrounds the actual filter. It keeps your filter safe during the wear and tear on your vehicle and protects it from punctures.

The media is the component that filters the oil. It's a maze of cellulose, synthetics and micro-fibers that removes harmful debris from your engine oil.

The core of the filter is inside the filter media and constructed from a variety of materials. It helps keep the shape and prevents it from collapsing under extreme pressure.

The base plate is the threaded part of the filter. It also directs the oil flow.

The gasket is the flexible rubber ring that seals the filter to the engine's oil filter base.

Getting Organized Can Save You Money

Is your life so disorganized that it's costing you money? If you're like all too many Americans, you're spending so much time rummaging around for lost or misplaced items—wasting a combined 9 million hours a day—that you're probably too frazzled to even contemplate that question. That's a real shame because it turns out it's not just stuff like car keys and medicine we're mislaying. According to Harris Interactive, 23 percent of adults admit to paying their bills late because they've lost them in what we'll call The Great Abyss.

And you know what happens when you don't pay your bills on time, right? You incur late fees—and, in the case of bank credit cards, for example, also open yourself to sky-high annual interest rates.

"People have to realize that being disorganized has real-life consequences," says organizational expert Jill Pollack, who's been featured everywhere from WE's "Bridezillas" to FoxNews.com.

Time you organized your life? Read on for some expert tips:

• Baskets are your new best friend. Everyone in your house should have his or her own decorative basket to hold loose items. "It's an instant declutterer," says Pollack.

• Your second-best friend is your coding system. Alphabetizing your files—yes, you'll need files—is apparently so yesterday. The "more intuitive" way to go? Colors. You know, green for financial documents, red for health matters, and so on.

• No one should be without a "home management" binder. Well, okay, you can probably do without it if you're paying someone $100,000 a year just to keep track of your family's schedule, emergency contact numbers and all the rest of life's minutiae that contribute to high stress levels.

• Stay on top of your bills. Not only do current bills rate a file folder all their own—color code it neon green, if you like—but you need to make a habit of going through it once or twice a week to remit payment.

• Clear your desk. If your home's cluttered, odds are so is your office. Make a point to clear it before you leave at night so you can start fresh in the morning.

Pollack has three final words of advice for pack rats who insist on keeping every last tax return (seven years normally suffices), every last paycheck (toss once you've gotten your W-2 form) and every last credit card statement (shred immediately, after checking for accuracy, since they're a prime source of identity theft).

Those words?

"Purge, purge, purge."

Protecting Your Child's Healthy Smile

Sure, they start out all shiny and healthy, but how do you keep your child's teeth staying that way?

Here are some expert tips:

- Avoid the dreaded "Baby Bottle Tooth Decay." It's caused by prolonged contact with almost any liquid other than plain water. (The technical term, as the National Institute of Dental and Craniofacial Research reminds us, is "early childhood caries.") So jot these three no-nos down: Don't routinely put your children to bed with a bottle containing sweetened liquids; don't use bottles as pacifiers; and don't even think about dipping pacifiers in sweetened liquids, honey or sugar.
- A different way to mark that first birthday. It is recommended that a child's first visit to the dentist occur no later than the child's first birthday.
- To wipe or not to wipe. Yes, getting your infant to eat pureed carrots can be a chore by itself, but did you know you're also supposed to wipe the infant's gums and teeth after each feeding with either a clean, moist cloth or a baby toothbrush?
- It takes two. To floss, that is. And as soon as kids have two teeth that touch, parents should clean between them daily with floss or an interdental cleaner.
