1) Spend more time with Family and Friends

Recent polls indicate that more than 50% of Americans plan to appreciate loved ones and spend more time with their family and friends for this year.

2) Getting in Shape

Usually getting in shape is at least #2 every year, and this year is no different.

3) Losing Weight

Another Annual favorite with Americans is losing some weight. Over 2/3rds of adult Americans are considered overweight (or obese). The key to any commitment is to set reasonable goals, and make changes in your daily routine that will help in your efforts.

4) Getting out of Debt

The economy is now the number one problem in our Country, and most Americans are committed to changing their life styles. Luxuries are a thing of the past.

5) Enjoying Life More

Along with reducing stress most folks feel that simply kicking back and taking a "one day at a time" attitude is a lot more satisfying.

6) Stop or Control Drinking

Just after raising their glass and toasting to the New Year, a lot of folks swear this will be the year that they cut back on alcohol consumption.

7) Quit Smoking

As a percentage of people that make resolutions, this category is always very high. In the past 10 years this country has actually seen a decline in smoking, because Americans realize that smoking kills people.

8) Getting Organized

Whether at home or in a business, most people recognize that some portion of their daily life could be improved if they simply made it easier to find things.

9-10) The last two resolutions that Americans make each year are split between commitments to: "Learn a hobby" or "Volunteer to Help Others."
